5 O'CLOCK EDITION.

The county official's attack upon the Board of Regents and the University faculty in this morning's Journal is but the vapors of a muddled brain. Hear him:

One of the teachers tendered her resignation some time ago, to her evident sorrow, and in order to retain her position, commenced a warfare against President Brown, calling to her aid others, who, no doubt, are ambitious to build up by tearing down, and were ready allies. Others wanted to be with the majority, content to take chances for their promotion with what they thought was the strongest side.

How unjust one can be when his identity is hid behind an anonymous name. The above no doubt alludes to Miss Tupper and is as false as it is malicious. The fact is, Miss Tupper resigned to maintain her womanhood, giving the Board of Regents ample time to supply her place without injury to the school. The true friends of the University began to inquire into the cause of her resignation, out of which the investigation grew. Miss Tupper made no complaint, and only after being called before the Regents did she tell her story. We believe the Board acted for the best interest of the University and the people of the State, without fear or favor, and we cheerfully submit to the decision.

It is reported in Washington that the Russian mission is to be tendered to Murat Halstead.

The customs authorities are endeavoring to stop opium smuggling on the Canadian frontier.

KANSAS expects to make 2,000,000 pounds of sugar this season.

Insurance Decision.
Judge Budd of the San Joaquin (Cal.) Superior Court has overruled the demurrer in the case of the Insurance Commissioner against the Stockton Mutual Indemnity Association, a fire insurance corporation organized there several months ago. The decision holds that the corporation cannot do business in the State, because it has no capital, and is therefore unable to comply with the provisions of the code and obtain a certificate from the Insurance Commissioner, without which it is unlawful to do insurance business. The case will be appealed.

An Embarrassing Coincidence.
The bullet which Morales, the bandit, fired into the head of Bunch, his partner, when they quarreled in Los Angeles last Summer, could not be found by the doctors. Morales was taken back to the Los Angeles county jail last Wednesday to testify against Bunch for horse stealing. When Bunch saw Morales he was noticed to turn deadly pale and put his hand to his mouth. The moment he set eyes on Morales the bullet dropped into his mouth, and the coincidence nearly frightened Bunch to death.

A Colored Harvard Graduate.
Although Harvard has fewer representatives among the hotels in the White Mountains than other colleges, yet a graduate of the present year has served as an elevator guide in one of the largest of them during the past Summer. He is colored. In addition to his work at the hotel he has given readings at neighboring houses.

Kindly Treated.
Fred Douglass, the new Minister to Hayti, is sniffling the fetid air of Port-au-Prince. To a reporter he said: "Yes, I do miss the Kearsarge already; for in all my life I never experienced greater courtesy—never more forcibly realized how deserved is the high reputation of our country's naval officers."

A Consolidation.
A meeting of the Directors of the three Santa Fe branches in Southern California was held at Los Angeles Tuesday and a consolidation effected under the name of the Southern California Railway Company. The roads consolidated are the California Southern, California Central and Redondo Beach.

Knocked Out.
The Detroit (Mich.) Journal says: "A baldheaded eagle undertook to dispute the right-of-way with a railway engine near Allegheny recently. Result, a dead eagle. The bird concussed with one of the cylinder heads, and a cylinder head in too much for a bald-head every time."

Building Their Own Engines.
The Union Pacific Company has begun building its own passenger engines, but will buy its heavy freight engines from locomotive works. The company now employs 600 men in its locomotive department.

Not Unfriendly.
The Blaines are in Washington, and Mrs. Blaine called on Mrs. Harrison on the 26th ult. They laughed over the newspaper reports that they were at outs. The Blaines took possession of their new home last week.

HOW DELIVERANCE CAME.

Peace Purchased at the Expense of a Bright Red Jersey.
I was sitting at my desk writing one day, says a writer in the Philadelphia Times, when I was startled by a voice close beside me. Looking up I saw a tall, slim negro girl, wearing a most dilapidated costume of many colors and pieces. Her face was pinched and ashy, her eyes a kind of muddy hazel, the peculiar combination giving her an unusual appearance.

"Oh, it any old clo's yer wanter trade?" she inquired, abruptly.
"No, I think not," I answered, glancing at the baskets of berries which hung on her arms.
"Better git some dese here berries; dey's mighty nice. I'll take mos' any thing for 'em. Dey's a good med'ine if you got any. Some uv us is perty rich always sick."

I shuddered to think of the consequences that might result from my venture in a second-hand drug establishment, but began to contemplate my stock of old clothes, as she seemed so determined to "trade." It was in an evil hour, indeed, that led me to begin series of "trading," that grew with the weeks and strengthened with the months until years even had passed over my frightened head. Scarcely a fortnight passed before I first made her acquaintance. She did not have a visit from my ubiquitous berry woman. She brought bread and fruit in their season, and nuts and chickens in their season; in fact, she elapsed all seasons for her own.

When I had begun to despair of ever riding myself of my "old man of the sea," I saw a long vista of years stretching before me in which I must be trading and giving in trade, happily we moved to a distant street.

I enjoyed a respite of two months in my new home unmolested by the trading Josephine. One day in early fall, she reappeared upon the scene with renewed vigor, bringing a basket of nuts and one chicken. I was compelled to sacrifice a plate of "victuals" and an old hat on the altar of hospitality and the above-mentioned articles.

During my search for the hat Josephine spied, hanging in my closet, a very pretty red jersey, which a few stitches might render very useful, and immediately began to devise ways and means to possess herself of it.

I at first told her I didn't want to dispose of it, but, suddenly, with the inspiration of a providential interference, I conceived a plan of deliverance. With a sigh for my dear departing jersey, but a bright hope for the future, I took the jacket down and gave it to her, saying:

"Here, Josephine, you may take it, and next week bring me two chickens for it."
"Yessum," she responded, eagerly. "I'll fetch you two chickens er Chusday morn. You kin 'pen' upon gittin' 'em. I ain' 'told yer no lie yit, an' I ain' goin' to tell yer none now."

She departed, to leave me in peace, for five years have passed since, and to this day I have not seen her or "dem chickens" either.

A DISASTROUS CHESTNUT.
How a Milwaukee Dude Got a Drink and Lost a Bride.
A very amusing incident, says Peck's Sun, happened a few evenings since over at the Bijou Opera-house, and one young man, at least, received a lesson which he will not forget in a hurry. McKee Rankin was entertaining a large audience with his new play, "The Runaway Wife," and had become blind, as is his habit at each performance, when the curtain went down on the second act. Several men immediately arose and crowded their way out, the eager expression upon their faces telling plainly that they were after a drink. Finally, a nice young fellow, with a beautiful bang, a low-cut vest and a general society air about him, began to get uneasy, and after looking anxiously at each man who arose to go, at last, in desperation, he turned to the fair dream of loveliness at his side and said:

"Mary, if you will kindly excuse me for a few moments, I should like to go into the lobby, as there is a gentleman out there whom I desire to speak with."
Mary did not answer, but bowed her consent, and the poor young man crowded his way out, much to the discomfort of several ladies in his immediate row. Hardly had he disappeared through the door when the young lady, too, arose and followed him. Alas! if he had but told the truth and said that he wanted a drink all might have been well, but that old chestnut about wanting to see a man was too suspicious for even a young thing like her to swallow, and so she followed him. She was not mistaken, for, going out the front door, she hurriedly glanced into the bar-room at the right and there beheld her escort peering into the inverted bottom of a glass.

With a cold glitter in her eagle optics that would have quered a book agent, she headed north and boarded a Grand avenue car, leaving the young man to guess at her whereabouts. Five minutes later he entered the theater, as being a trifle near-sighted, marched down the aisle, and even crowded his way to his seat before discovering her absence. Then the blank look that came across his features was laughable to behold. First he looked at the vacant seat and surveyed the audience, but all to no purpose, for she was nowhere to be seen.

Finally a gallery and mildly hinted that "De girl has gone home to her maw," and then, amid much laughter, the disappointed young man left the house. To make it worse, the young couple were to have been married soon, but now the wedding has been indefinitely postponed.

Volume of Niagara Falls.
The amount of water passing over Niagara falls varies with the height of the river. Prof. W. D. Gunning estimates the average amount at 18,000,000 cubic feet per minute. Allowing 62½ pounds to the cubic foot this would give a total of 562,500 tons per minute, or 33,212,500 tons in 45 minutes, of which somewhat more than two-thirds passes over the Horseshoe falls. Other estimates place the total amount passing over both falls as high as 100,000,000 tons per hour.

JOTTINGS.

Grapes still continue to arrive in Reno, and Leadbetter has a nice lot. Call and examine.
Those in want of either kitchen, dining-room, parlor or bedroom furniture should examine E. C. Sessions' stock and prices.

George Becker's Granite Saloon is where you can always find a good fire, the daily newspapers and both Pacific and Fredericksburg beer.
J. J. Becker's hot noon lunches are a great convenience to those who cannot spare the time to walk to their residences for their mid-day meals.

C. J. Brookins' home-manufactured candies are conceded to be as fine and a great deal fresher and more palatable than the imported "French mixed" article.
No better family resort than the Riverside Hotel can be found anywhere, and the patronage it is receiving shows that it is appreciated by the traveling public.

At C. A. Thurston's news depot can be had all the best brands of Lorillard's tobacco and as fine a quality of both imported and domestic cigars as can be found in town.
By leaving orders with J. M. Fulton at the N. C. & O. R. R. office he will have first class mahogany, oak or pine wood, either limbs or split, delivered to your house. Every purchaser is requested to verify measurement. The pitch pipe is left in this wood, and not picked out and sold for twelve dollars per cord.

Epoch.

The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is treasured in the memory and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is gratefully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters. So many feel they owe their restoration to health to the use of the Great Alterative and Tonic. If you are troubled with any disease of the kidneys or Liver or Stomach, of long or short standing you will surely find relief by the use of Electric Bitters. Sold at 50c and $1 per bottle at Hodgkinson's drug store.

Their Business Booming.

Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade at Hodgkinson's drug store as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Their trade is simply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, croup and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free; large size, $1. Every bottle warranted.

Croup Can be Prevented.

We want every mother to know that croup can be prevented. There is no question about this; as it has been done in thousands of cases, and you may depend upon it that when a child takes the croup, it is owing to the negligence of its parents. True croup never appears without due and timely warning; a few hours, or a day before the attack, the child becomes hoarse. This hoarseness is the first indication of croup, and is a sure sign that croup is to follow, unless promptly and properly treated. The free use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as directed with each bottle, under the heading "To prevent croup" will dispel all symptoms of the disease. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

The Best There Is.

A new typewriter has been invented by the party who invented half of the Remington and all of the Caligraph. It has no ribbon, no wooden bars, but is all steel, prints true and without any blur. It costs an even hundred dollars, and is worth two of any other machine. It prints better, wears longer, is easier to learn and works faster, besides other recommendations. C. A. BRAGO, Agent.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, oozes, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Hodgkinson & Co., druggists.

J. Westlake

Has established himself in the boot and shoe shop formerly occupied by Wm. Hart, opposite Postoffice, where he is prepared to do all kinds of stylish work at the lowest prices. Ladies' fine shoes a specialty. Repairing neatly and promptly done.

ELECTRICAL EXECUTIONS.

No Struggle, Sound or Physical Pain.
Harold P. Brown, in the North American Review for November, writes as follows: The preparations necessary for electrical executions are very simple. The condemned criminal's cell is visited by the prison authorities, and his hands and feet are saturated with the weak potash solution which so rapidly overcomes the skin's resistance. During this space of thirty seconds or less his electrical resistance may be measured, though Mr. Edison's researches in this line have rendered even this unnecessary. Shod in wet felt slippers, the convict walks to the chair and is instantly strapped into position; his feet and hands are again immersed in the potash solution contained in a foot-tub connected to one pole and in hand-basins connected to the other. With this perfect contact there is no possibility of burning the flesh and thus reducing the effect of the current upon the body. Dials of electrical instruments indicate that all the apparatus is in perfect order and record the pressure at every moment. The deputy Sheriff closes the switch. Respiration and heart action instantly cease, and electricity, with a velocity equaling that of light, destroys life before nerve-sensation, at a speed of only 180 feet per second, can reach the brain. There is a stiffening of the muscles, which gradually relax after five seconds have passed; but there is no struggle and no sound. The majesty of the law has been vindicated, but no physical pain has been caused.

The Alturas (Cal.) New Era publishes the following: Frank Reynolds and Arthur Jackson, while riding on the plateau one day last week found a human skull. It was a well-formed head and the teeth were well preserved, and they judged it to have been the skull of a young man. It was a desert looking place about half way between Double Head mountain and Steele Swamp. Here is a mystery for some one to work upon.

Proud of His Paper.

If the readers of the Journal will excuse the remark the Journal simply exclaims that there are no lies on the Journal.

"It is a fact," that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from impure state or low condition of the blood, overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

BREVITIES.

Local and General Intelligence.
Tacoma has fifty lawyers and eighty doctors.

The names of 2,067 colored voters were stricken from the lists in Lynchburg, Virginia.

John Berry, son of a New York policeman, has been driven insane from the excessive use of cigarettes.

Three boys and two girls of the Barron family at Nevada City, Cal., have died of diphtheria since October 13th.

Commissioner Rontier says the fish ladder in the Klamath river, which has been complained of, is all that could be desired.

Charles Roberts, a cattleman of Albuquerque, picked a quarrel with Ralph Cribbets, an employe, Monday, and Cribbets killed him.

A new Volapuk paper has been started in Portland, Or., by Arnold Scherzinger, Professor of Volapuk, entitled Volapuken Melotik.

The heaviest snowstorm in ten years has visited Northern and Central New Mexico. High winds prevailed and the snow is drifting and freezing.

Edward C. Gunther was shot twice through the body by Frank Clifford in a quarrel about Gunther's wife, at Fresno Tuesday, and is likely to die.

There is no Indian uprising in Arizona beyond the escape of eight prisoners who killed their guard. The reported fight near Crittenden has not been corroborated.

There is no article of clothing from a pair of overalls to the finest dress suit that cannot be found at the White House. They also carry boots, shoes, the best underwear and both hats and caps.

Arizona Chilla Seed.

Among the many curious products of Arizona Territory is the small gray Chilla seed. The Indians gather it wild in quantity, and, with other edible seeds, vend it from house to house. When used a small quantity of the seed is dropped into a goblet of clear water, when they immediately burst open with a curious effect, forming a thick fluid. This mixture is a pleasant cooling drink for hot weather, having a mild laxative effect. When moistened it is even more slippery than flaxseed.

A Remarkable Growth.

W. N. Dawson of Alilia, Tulare county, Cal. says the Visalia Delta, stuck some fig cutting in the ground last spring. Some of them never stopped growing, but pushed right on, making a grove of six feet and raising as high as seventeen figs apiece this season. These facts are astonishing suggestions of what may be accomplished with this valuable fruit.

A Hard Hit.

The hardest blow that the doctors have had for a long time was dealt by Nellie Bly in the Sunday New York World. Seven eminent New York doctors diagnosed her case, and no two agreed as to what ailed her. She gives their names.

Write Up the Pope.

Mr. Stead of the Pall Mall Gazette is going to Rome to investigate and write up the condition and prospects of the Papacy. He is armed with a note from Cardinal Manning, introducing him to the Pope.

Starvation Feared.

Unless immediate aid is given to the 5,000 victims of the famine in Labrador it is feared they will all die of starvation before Spring, as it will be impossible to reach them when cold weather sets in.

Diphtheria in Ohio.

In a bulletin issued by the Ohio State Board of Health diphtheria is shown to be prevalent to an alarming extent in Cincinnati, Toledo, Dayton, Springfield, Columbus and many other places.

Held to be Valid.

A type-written will has been declared valid by the courts of Berks county, Pa. This establishes the claim of type-writer work to be called "writing," while the patent office has officially classed it as "printing."

After the Troughs.

Chief of Police Mitchell, at Seattle, has published a notice warning the criminals to leave the city at once or go to work. He promises to put them in the chain gang if they disobey the order.

Nebraska Coal Tariff.

The Nebraska State Board of Transportation has issued an order requiring the railroads to put in force the coal tariff, recently prescribed by the Board, within thirty days.

ADVICE FROM BELOW STAIRS.

"Bridget, I would give all my wealth for half of your health."

"Sure, ma'am, you need only give $5, for that's the price of six bottles of J. V. S., as the boys call it. Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla will make you as strong as me, ma'am."

Mrs. J. Barron, of 123 Seventh Street, San Francisco, writes: "I have been taking Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla with immense benefit. It is perfectly splendid to build up nervous, run-down and worn out women." Mrs. Fred Coy, of 327 Ellis Street, Mrs. G. Werner of 220, Jerry Street, and hundreds of others relate the same experience with the pure vegetable juices of this California compound.

There is but little, if any danger from whooping cough, when the cough is kept loose and expectation easy, which can always be done by the free use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no injurious substance. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

THE WHISPERING CORN.
Have you ever walked at early morn? Beside a field of stately corn? Just while the red sun crossed the rim Of this round world, mist-wet and dim? Often have I, but not so often now, Mysterious whisperings far and near.

"As just at nature's waking time, While hill-sides yet are white with rime, And while the first lark, rising, flings Dew-drops from off his early wings, And now and then a faint sound tells Where cattle rise and shake their bells.
"Hush," says the corn, "with dog and gun, I see a hunter hither run. Oh, trembling here, far inward lies, Lie close, oh, partridge, do not fly! The hunter lists. It seems to say: "No game is lurking here to-day."
Sometimes the farmer comes to see, And then it says: "Here's gold for thee, Which sun and air and dew and soil Have gathered to reward thy toil. Ten thousand sentinels in line Guard each his gift for thee and thine."
Or if some Dives waits for health, Worn out with care of useless wealth, It whispers: "You make gold of tears, Of hunger, cure and pain, and fear, But here are alchemists whose gold Must feed the hungry, warm the cold."
Sometimes with heavy heart there goes A love-lorn swain along the rows; Then "List," it whispers, "at hushing bee, When rafters ring with rustic glee Of brown-cheeked maid and merry men, Ah! you shall kiss her, kiss her then."
Thus oft in low, mysterious voice Soft voices from the tall corn rise— Lulled lullabies, as though unknown tongue Whispered the long lull leaves among. They tell me secrets sweet and true; They'll whisper, if you wish, to you.
—George Horton, in Chicago Herald.

AFFINITIES.
Cousin Mark and Miss Kent, and Their Broken Declarations.
"I wouldn't marry the best man that ever lived!" And she meant it, or, what answers the same purpose, she thought she meant it. After all, how few of us ever really know what we mean! "I engaged myself once, when a girl, and the simplest thought he owned me. I soon took the conceit out of him and sent him away about his business." The voice was now a little sharp. What wonder, with so galling a memory! "No man shall ever tyrannize over me—never! What the mischief do you suppose is the matter with this sewing-machine!"
"Annoyed at your logic, most likely," said my friend, a bright young matron, as she threaded her needle. "My husband is not a tyrant, Miss Kent."
"I am glad you are satisfied," was the laconic reply.
It was quite evident by the dress-maker's face that she had formed her own opinion of my friend's husband, and was quite competent to form and express an opinion on any subject. Miss Kent was a little woman, fair as a girl and plump as a robin. She wasn't ashamed to own that she was forty years old and an old maid. She had earned her own living most of her life and was proud of it. She was a good nurse, a faithful friend and a jolly companion, but stroke her the wrong way and you'd wish you hadn't in much shorter time than it takes me to write it. Her views on all subjects were strikingly original, and not to be combated.
"What are you going to do when you are old?" persisted the mistress of the establishment.
"What other folks do, I suppose."
"But you can't work forever."
"Can't say that I want to."
"Now, Miss Kent, a husband with means, a kind, intelligent man—"
"I don't want any man. I tell you, Mrs. Carlisle, I wouldn't marry the best man living, if he was as rich as Croesus, and would die if I didn't have him. Now, if you have exhausted this question, I should like to try on your dress."
There was something behind all this I knew well. My friend's eyes danced with fun, and as Miss Kent fitted the waist she threw me a letter from the bureau.
"Read that," she said, with a knowing look; "it may amuse you."
This was the letter she said:
"MY DEAR JENNIE—I shall be delighted to spend a month with you and your husband. There must be, however, one stipulation about my visit—you must say no more about marriage. I shall never be fooled again. Twenty years ago to-day I wrecked my whole life. (Better embrace in a new ship, hadn't he?) put in Jennie, sotto voce. "So unsuitable was the marriage, so utterly and entirely wrecked have been its consequences, that I am forced to believe the marriage institution a mistake. So, for the last time let me assure you that I wouldn't marry the best woman that ever lived, if by so doing I could save her life. Your old cousin, MARK LANSING."
"Oh, isn't he?" said Jennie, and then pointed to the chubby little figure whose back happened to be turned.
I shook my head and laughed.
"You'll see," said the incorrigible.
"See what?" inquired Miss Kent, quite unaware of our pantomime.
"That parties which are chemically attracted will unite. Of course, alkahest and acid. Don't you think this sleeve a little too long, Miss Kent?"
"Not after the seam is off. But what were you saying, Mrs. Carlisle? The other day at Prof. Boynton's I saw some wonderful experiments."
"And did they succeed?" inquired Jennie, demurely.
"Beautifully."
"So will mine. I never yet botched a job in my life."
"I don't think I quite understand you," replied Miss Kent, perplexed.
"No! I always remember when talking about marriage, my dear."
"Bother!" was all the little woman said, but the tone was much better-natured than I expected.
The next week Cousin Mark arrived, and I liked him at once. An unhappy marriage would have been the last thing I thought of in connection with that gentleman. He had accepted the situation like a man, Jennie told me, and for fifteen years carried a load of misery that few could have endured. Death came to him at last, and now the poor fellow actually believed himself an alien from domestic happiness.
"Singular as it may appear, Cousin Mark was the embodiment of good health and good nature; fifty perhaps, though he didn't look it, and as rotund and as fresh in his way as the little dressmaker was in hers. As I looked at him I defied any body to see one and not be reminded of the proverb. True, he had more of the polish which comes from travel and adaptation to different classes and individuals, but he was not a whit more intelligent by nature than the bright little woman whom Jennie determined he should marry.
"I was surprised you should think it necessary to caution me about that, Cousin Mark," cooed the plotter, as she stood by his side, looking out of the window. "The idea of my being so ridiculous!" and in the same breath, with a wink at me: "Come, let us go to my sitting-room. We are at work there, but it won't make any difference to you, will it?"
Of course Cousin Mark answered: "No," promptly, as innocent as a dove about the trap being laid for him.
"This is my cousin, Mrs. Lansing, Miss Kent," said Cousin Mark, bowing politely and Miss Kent arose, dropped her scissors, and sat down again. Cousin Mark picked up the refractory implements, and then Mrs. Jennie proceeded with rare care.
